Cicerō, cum cōnsul esset, paucōs coniūrātōs comprehendit et senātum fortiter convocāvit. Dīxit sē rem pūblicam labōribus cōnsiliisque suīs cōservāvisse, et rogāvit senātōrēs quid dē Lentulō vērē cōgitārent. Cōnsul Lentulō dēmōnstrāvit litterās quās iste ad Catilīnam mīserat et quās ipse intercipere potuerat et in senātum illō diē tulerat. “Dīc nōbīs omnem rem,” Cicerō āit, “ut vītā tuam cōservēs! Tū sōlus ex hīs coniūrātīs vīvēs, dummodo tōtam vērītātem nunc dīcere velīs—nōlī dubitāre aut maximās poenās dabis!” Cum Lentulus magnopere territus esset et prīmō nōn respondēre māluisset, tamen dēnique nārrāvit quid Cicerō scīre vellet. Tum aliī coniūrātī tantō timōre superātī sunt ut ex senātū quam celerrimē fugerent. Cōnsul aliīs senātōribus dīxit: “Istōs pessimōs ex urbe nostrā expellāmus nē Rōmam umquam iterum videant!”

Cicero, when he was consul, arrested/seized a few conspirators and bravely convened the senate/called the senate together. He said (that) he had saved/preserved the republic by his own efforts/labors and plans, and he asked the senators what they truly/really thought/were thinking about Lentulus. The consul showed (to) Lentulus the letter(s) which that (despicable) man had sent to Catiline and which he had himself been able to intercept and had carried/brought into the senate (on) that day. “Tell us (about) the whole affair/everything,” Cicero says/said, “so that you may (in order to) save your (own) life! You alone of/from these conspirators will live, provided that/so long as you are willing/you want/wish to tell the entire truth now—do not hesitate or you will pay the greatest/a very great penalty/price!” Although[note TAMEN in main clause] Lentulus had been greatly terrified/frightened and had at first preferred not to respond, nevertheless he finally/at last told what Cicero wanted to know. Then the other conspirators were overcome by such great fear that they fled from the senate as quickly as possible. The consul said to the other senators: “Let us expel/banish those very bad/most wicked men from our city so that they may not ever (never) again see Rome!”

PRAEMIUM ADDITUM. (+ 1-2 for the 1st question, depending on detail; + 1 for each of the others)

What do nox and the senēs sevēriōrēs represent in the context of Catullus' "Give Me a Thousand Kisses" poem?

old age and death (remoteness from youth/life/love/the light of the sun)

Translate the graffito "THYRSA, NOLI AMARE FORTVNATV!" and indicate the correct spelling of the one misspelled word: "Thyrssa, do not love Fortunatus!" FORTVNATV should be FORTVNATVM

Why did Martial toast Laevia sex cyathīs, but Ida tribus? the number of cups equaled the number of letters in the ladies' names

Postumus offered to greet Martial in either of two ways; Martial replied mālō manum; what does this mean, and what was the other option? "I prefer the (your) hand/hand-shake," i.e., rather than a KISS!
