Recenter (“recently”) trēs locōs (“passages”) lēgimus, ūnum ā Mārtiāle (Mārtiālis, -s, Martial) scrīptum, alium ab Īsidōrō (Īsidōrus, -ī, Isidore), tertium ā Catullō. Mārtiālis amīcō iūcundissimō dicit haec facere vītās nostrās beātiorēs: corpus sānum, sapientia, amīci vērī, somnus facilis. Catullus Lesbiae carmen scrīpsit in quō inquit: “Vīvāmus atque amēmus, ut nunc habeāmus vītā quam fēlicissimā; ubi lūx nostra brevissima dēlēta est, ūna nox perpetua nōbīs dormienda est.” In tertiō locō Īsidōrus dē nōminibus diērum nārrāvit; dixit Rōmānos septem diēs ā stēllis in caelō appellāvisse: sōl est clārior quam lūna, et Rōmānī, igitur, prīmum diem appellāverunt “diem sōlis” et secundum “diem lūnae.” Librōs hōrum scrīptōrum hodiē legimus ut plūs dē rēbus Rōmānīs sciāmus.
